

Time to nominate for this year's NES Innovation Prize 2019

This year's NES Innovation Prize 2019 is a prize that is awarded to a person, a company or organization that can demonstrate an innovative and sustainable product or service with commercial and / or socio-economic potential related to ergonomics.

Each Nordic country nominates a candidate who is then faced with the NES board that produces winners.

The finalists have the opportunity to attend the NES conference where the prize is announced. The nominees receive a diploma and a seal that can be used in marketing.

This is required to participate:

- The person / company / organization has a connection ergonomics
- The innovation is a physical product, service or combination of these that shows good ergonomics
- The innovation is unique and has commercial and / or socio-economic potential.

What the person / company / organization is expected to deliver in order to be nominated for this year's Innovation Award, the following is expected:

- A brief description of the person / company / organization as well as product and / or service that meets the criteria
- Nominations are sent to the respective Nordic country board
